

Running from Love, Fighting for Life: Marellas Trust (New Earth Series Book 3)

Until now Marella hasn't had the best of luck. After her parents died, she was bullied into marrying by the tribes council. In the ultimate act of rebellion, she gave herself to another man before she was married. Her husband was furious and made her life as miserable as possible. With no love between them, Marella suffered daily at his hand. As time went on, she found him leaving her at strange times, and once dared to follow him. But that night would end with his disappearance and Marella taking the blame. Shunned by her tribe and with no family left, Marella does the best she can to make it through each day. And then, to her shock, one day she sees the one person who can turn her life upside down back in her dwelling. Branish has returned to claim what he left years ago. A love that took him too long to recognize, and the woman that captured his heart. He expected his acceptance to be hard fought but nothing prepared him for what Marella could put him through. But now that he found her again, Branish isn't about to let her go this time. Especially since she needs his help and protection whether she admits it or not. Even if he must take her to the ends of the earth, Branish is prepared to do whatever it takes to keep them both alive and prove his love to Marella.
