

A Lone Stranger (The Bent Zealots MC) (Volume 3)

Ride on. Ride on. HARTE: After a world-changing run-in with the guy I thought was my father, I went on the road to find myself. I patched over to The Bent Zealots MC, an out-and-proud club on the Colorado River. A cock virgin, I raced to experience all I could, eagerly sniffing every nook and cranny, a whole new existence offered up by Grindr. But when Ormond Tangier was assaulted by a rival club, I quickly got down to brass tacks, to show my new brothers I was all business. Too bad that business involves Bond Blackburn, jailbird brother of our Prez, Turk. That guy is so far in denial he's practically Egyptian. But he even he can't deny what I saw with my own eyes at the gay club. Sure, I was on my knees paying homage to a Daddy Dom, but Bond can't pretend he wasn't getting some oral praise as well. And now they're telling me I have to work with this hypocrite? BOND: This club is a fucking joke. How's a man supposed to make a new start after the joint? First, my own brother forced me to prospect. I'm supposed to labor in a noxious sweatshop making product for their pot dispensary. And I have to sneak downtown if I want some halfway decent head, because I don't even want my gay so-called brothers knowing about my shameful hobby. Now we're reaching out to the cops to even the score with those Hellfire Nuts who abused Ormond. And that delicious Harte Saxonberg is getting my goat, so by-the-book, such a bleeding heart. I just want to strangle him or fuck him. HARTE: I'm stuck between a rock and a hard place. Bond Blackburn kisses me, then punches me. Fucks me, then ignores me. He's got me so upside-down I've lost the clarity I had a week ago when I rode west. Ride west, young man. I could be a steam train if I could just lay down my tracks. But the only name I'm calling out is that sexy convict.
