THE MAN WHO KEPT ON LIVING includes all three books of G.P. Grewal's post-apocalyptic trilogy: 600 Miles, North and Barstow. 600 Miles: A Post-Apocalyptic Adventure Civilization in America is over. Braving the desert wastes is a lone wanderer, his destination: the legendary ruins of Los Angeles, a place from which few have ever returned. Joined by a mysterious gunslinger, a hook-wielding Mexican warrior and a spirited Southern gal, the crumbling city eventually reveals to him not only his destiny, but the true nature of humankind. North: A Post-Apocalyptic Journey Elgin the half-Navajo half-hillbilly wanderer returns in NORTH, the gripping sequel to 600 MILES. The desolate ruins of the City of Angels left far behind him, together with a runaway slave girl he chances a long and perilous journey up Interstate 5, the unlikely pair facing the hardships of a bleak and lawless world in a heartfelt story of love and hope after civilizations fall. Barstow: A Post-Apocalyptic Western A wanderer turned outlaw and a fierce warrior woman of native blood roam the wastes of a dead civilization, battling cowboys, cannibals and the hot desert sun in this dark literary adventure set in the post-apocalyptic American Southwest. Strong violence, adult themes and situations.
